

CONTENTS

MAY 2010
VOLUME 100 • NUMBER 5

LAND MATTERS | 13

LETTERS | 15

RIPRAP | 18

A managed retreat is taken to extremes, high-style scaffolding in NYC, Halprin's enduring influence in Charlottesville, roots of steel in Illinois, and playing around with park design in the UK.

Edited by Linda McIntyre

SUSTAINABLE DESIGN | 24

Buried No More

The daylighting of a creek brings city and developer together to revive an entire watershed.

By Mary H. Cooper Ellis,
Associate ASLA

FIRM FOCUS | 38

More Than Preservationists

The Cultural Landscape Foundation is raising awareness of notable designed landscapes and the individuals who created them.

By Daniel Jost, ASLA

RESEARCH | 52

Research Design Connections

Several recent articles discussing the interplay of natural and man-made environments have implications for the practice of landscape architecture.

By Sally Augustin and Jean Marie Cackowski-Campbell, ASLA

CENTENNIAL | 58

Statuary in Informal Settings

As part of a yearlong celebration of its 100th volume, Landscape Architecture is republishing excerpts from its first issue. By Harold A. Caparn

ECOLOGY | 66

Graduating to Green

Lawn is a critical part of the campus landscape, but it also raises environmental questions. How are colleges addressing the conundrum?

By Mark Hough, ASLA

CREATIVE LEARNING | 78

Steampunk Landscape

How does the steampunk phenomenon affect the world of design? By Chip Sullivan

Urban Strip

The gargantuan new CityCenter breaks the mold of the typical Vegas development.

By Alex Ulam

90

Humanizing the Botanical Garden

The Naples Botanical Garden in southwest Florida is not just a pretty plant museum.

By Daniel Jost, ASLA

100

RESIDENTIAL DESIGN | 84

Made to Order

A careful plan transforms a scruffy post-construction lot. By Ellen C. Wells

BOOKS | 116

PRODUCT PROFILES | 118

DISPLAY AD INDEX | 120

BUYER'S GUIDE INDEX | 121

CRITIC AT LARGE | 140

Let the Games Begin

The Vancouver venues were designed more for the community than for the Olympics, so how did they handle the crowds?

By Tim Newcomb