
LAND MATTERS | 13

LETTERS | 15

RIPRAP | 18

Detroit welcomes a happy trail, an art installation brings winter cheer in Arkansas, one landscape that needs more bamboo, and news on upcoming competitions.

Edited by Linda McIntyre

RESIDENTIAL DESIGN | 24

Pacific Heights

A California couple surrounded their house in Malibu with a landscape that shows off their spectacular vantage point on the ocean.

By Debra Prinzing

URBAN PARKS | 30

Shoehorn Parks

Squeezing innovative green spaces into crowded cities requires looking for land in unexpected places.

By Peter Harnik

WORK SPACES | 42

Walking the Talk

What some landscape architects are doing to make their offices more sustainable.

By Daniel Jost, ASLA

FIRM FOCUS | 54

Designing Disney

For the landscape architects at Walt Disney Imagineering, the magic is in the details.

By Daniel Jost, ASLA

PUBLISHING | 66

Publish and Be Seen

Landscape architects are using books as marketing tools.

By Lake Douglas, ASLA

TECHNOLOGY | 74

A Geospatial Approach To PDFs

New types of PDFs are allowing GIS data and maps to be shared more easily.

By James L. Sipes, ASLA

SHARED WISDOM | 102

Drawn to Design

Ace Torre, FASLA, sketches as a catalyst for ideas. By James Richards, ASLA

Mitigating Past Inequities

In Los Angeles, a new park on a former oil field brings nature into a park-starved neighborhood.

By Daniel Jost, ASLA

82

Northala Fields Forever

Northala Fields, the largest park to be built in London for a century, is an exemplar of sustainable construction and design.

By Tim Coulthard

94

BOOKS | 116

PRODUCT PROFILES | 118

DISPLAY AD INDEX | 120

BUYER'S GUIDE INDEX | 121

OPINION | 134

In a Tough Job Market, Reasons to Persevere

If your dream job isn't available, consider some alternatives.

By Michael Van Valkenburgh, FASLA